MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Hi everyone from Austral Probus,
As we come to the close of our first year of operation and our first Christmas together, the committee would like to wish you all a very safe and happy Christmas.

While we have endeavoured to keep you informed of all upcoming events, human error and a few typos have crept into our flyers. So please always refer to the refer to the activities calendar on our Austral Probus website for the latest information and any corrections that may be necessary. Here is a link to the calendar.

And finally remember there will be no meetings or activities in January and the AGM will be held on Friday 8th March so those going on the Vietnam trip will be available to participate. Please think about taking up a position on the committee so we can continue to build the club and enjoy the friendship of our fellow members.

Best Wishes
Gary Amesbury

TODAY I SMILED

Today I smiled, and all at once,
Things didn't look so bad.
Today I shared with someone else,
A bit of hope I had.
Today I sang a little song,
And felt my heart grow light,
And walked a happy little mile,
With not a cloud in sight.
Today I worked with what I had,
Nor longed for any more,
And what had seemed like only weeds,
Were flowers at my door.
Today I loved a little more,
Complained a little less,
And in the giving of myself,
Forgot my weariness.

TOM THUMB & CAMELLIA GARDENS

Overcast skies and a little misty rain were not a great start to the day but the weather did not deter the 25 on board the bus. Spirits were high if the volume of conversation and laughter are any indication.

With Michael driving and Dereck navigating we arrived in plenty of time for our cruise of Port Hacking and the Hacking River. The knowledgeable and friendly staff gave us an insight into the history of the area as well as information about the owners of many of the magnificent properties along the shoreline. Have a look at the photos to see the unique way the skipper of the Tom Thumb steered at times. Yes, it was a very relaxing cruise.

Tea, coffee, cordial and an array of good quality biscuits were available during the entire cruise. We were able to help ourselves at any time and we took advantage of it.

Following our three-hour cruise it was back to the bus (some, who shall remain nameless, suggested we leave their straggling wives behind). We didn't, but had a good laugh imagining them making their way home by public transport.

Back on board and soon we arrived at the Camellia Gardens. Michael showed his driving prowess by managing to turn the bus around in a very tight situation. Wendy (a staff member at the café) had tables ready for our noisy group and the delicious lunch orders were promptly delivered to us. The staff at the Café have invited us back so that shows we must have behaved ourselves.

The drive home was surprisingly quick. The "newly formed Austral Probus Choir" who entertained Dereck and Michael on the way back probably won't be booked for another gig. Then again, a bit more practice may work wonders.

Thank you to the Activities Committee and everyone who helped make this long-awaited day so successful. We look forward to more outings in 2019.

- Beverly

PROBUS PROBE – DERECK TURNER

What is a favourite hobby of yours?

In much of my spare time, I drive to Cronulla to volunteer with Marine Rescue NSW. I joined years ago because I like boats and boating, but in April 2016 I sustained a back injury while offshore in a boat searching for a boater who fell out of a boat without wearing a lifejacket. Consequently, I can only do radio duties, so I continue to volunteer as an interest and a service to the boating public.

What is your favourite food?

I like Italian food. My favourite is Veal Sambucca.

What is the most memorable restaurant you have dined in?

(Auto correct wants to change this to: “What is the most memorable restaurant you have died in?”)

My most memorable restaurant is probably St Isadore at Milton on the South Coast. They grow most of their own ingredients and only use fresh local produce. My favourite is Fortunato’s Ristorante Pizzeria at Sutherland which is close to where we used to live. They serve the Veal Sambucca mentioned above.

Your most enjoyable movie of all time?

I love “The Producers”, written by Mel Brooks, so good that they made two versions, the first starring Gene Wilder and Zero Mostel and a later one with Nathan Lane, Uma Thurman and Will Ferrell. I also caught the stage play version at The Star several years ago. And any movie by Mel Brooks. He has no fear of “Political Correctness” and will satire any subject. It’s a shame he’s not still making movies (at 91), there’s a mile of subject matter available out there.

What’s something unusual about you most people don’t know?

I grew up without a father. My mother was serving with the WAAAF in Townsville, and she had a good time on new-year’s-eve 1944. My father was sent to New Guinea soon after, and he never learned that she was pregnant.

Many years later, through an involved process of detection and guesswork, I managed to find out his name, but unfortunately, he had died in 1989, probably not knowing that he had a handsome son. I also found out that my father had had a daughter, so I have got a sister somewhere that I have never met.

What is the most interesting place you have ever visited?

The most interesting place we have visited is Istanbul, with tours of the Topkapi Palace, the Blue Mosque, Hagia Sophia, the Grand Bazaar and the spice Bazaar. We had dinner at the Galata tower, where we watched Belly Dancers and Wild Dervishes.

What is the best program on TV and why do you enjoy it?

I enjoy watching QI (on Foxtel) because I learn some Quite Interesting facts, in a hilariously funny manner.

Have you had any “Brush with Fame” experiences... Who/Where.

Fame has eluded me, so famous people avoid me.

As a child what did you want to be when you grew up?

At high school, I thought that I would be an architect, because I liked technical drawing, and was very good at it. Apart from that, I had no idea what I wanted to do, and was just lucky to fall into many jobs that I enjoyed, and excelled at.

What's the funniest thing that has happened to you?

A long time ago, I was working as an electrical apprentice at a home in xxx, modernising the kitchen. I helped disconnect electrical things, and the plumber disconnected the stove. When he moved the stove, the kitchen filled with the smell of gas. After we opened the window and dispersed the gas, I noticed a birdcage hung up in the corner of the kitchen, and when I looked at it, there was a budgie dead in the bottom of the cage. My boss said to the plumber, "It looks like you have gassed the bird."

He said, "That's a shame." Then he said, "Let me send my apprentice to the Haymarket, they have birds there. I'm sure he can match this one."

So the plumbing apprentice drove off in the ute, saying to the owner lady, "Just off for some spare parts." When he returned, we swapped the dead bird for the one he came back with. Shortly after that, the owner lady came into the kitchen to check out our progress, and shouted, "Look at the budgie, look at the budgie."

I said, "He's a handsome bird. He looks quite chirpy."

Then she said, "But when I came down for breakfast this morning, he was dead on the bottom of the cage, I was going to bury him in the garden."

So then we had to explain our subterfuge to her. She was pleased with her new pet.

Did you achieve that childhood desire?

I did not become an architect, because I realised that I am not an inventive person, and have trouble coming up with original new ideas. I am much better at assessing faulty equipment and determining the best repair solution. Most of my working life has been in the industrial maintenance industry, and I have enjoyed my work.

What is your favourite childhood memory?

As a four-year-old, I wanted to go to school. At Christmas before I started school, Santa gave me a leather school bag. The smell of that leather bag lingers with me forever and any new leather brings back happy memories.

If you could be any animal in the world, what animal would you be and why?

I would be a big Brown Bear. They get to catch and eat fish. I have never been good at catching fish, but I like to eat them. Nobody complains if they growl about the house and when the weather turns cold, they hibernate in their beds and sleep all winter. I could handle that. Before they hibernate, they are supposed to eat themselves stupid. I could deal with that also.

GUESS WHO? – DECEMBER EDITION

Can you guess which Probus member is photographed below?

PROBUS PROBE – LYN TURNER

What is a favourite hobby of yours?

Reading and Knitting

What is your favourite food?

Fish & Chips. When I was much younger my Poppa used to go to the fish shop every Friday night and bring home a feast. He also went to the hotel next to the shop and bought a bottle of beer for the adults. Sometimes though, I was allowed to have a shandy with very little beer in it, but I felt very grown up. I loved Friday nights.

What is the most memorable restaurant you have dined in?

Dining at Chequers Do you guys still remember the nightclub in Liverpool Street? We thought we were very “posh” especially as the entertainment was Shirley Bassey. It was the very first time I heard her sing “BIG SPENDER” and have loved the song ever since.

Your most enjoyable movie of all time?

“Ryan’s Daughter” – It was a long time ago but I still remember it, especially the sexy officer with the limp. After the show Dereck walked with a limp for some time.

What’s something unusual about you most people don’t know?

Unfortunately I am an open book – it’s all out there.

What’s the funniest thing that has happened to you?

Christmas Day a few years ago and after quite a few Chrissy drinks I dived into our pool and surfaced with blood pouring from my nose where I had skinned it. Everyone present laughed so much that I saw the funny side of it and laughed along with them.

What is the most interesting place you have ever visited?

Dereck and I have been lucky to have seen most countries in Europe which love but my favourite destination is Santorini which has the architecture I love, the shops sell the most gorgeous wares, the seafood is wonderful, the people are friendly and the views over the Caldara are beautiful.

What is the best program on TV and why do you enjoy it?

I enjoy watching “A Place in the Summer Sun” in which a lot of Brits, fed up with the English awful winter weather want to purchase holiday homes/villas in Spain. They are shown five properties mainly along the Spanish coastline by a real estate agent and I find it interesting to see what properties these people can buy with their budget.

Have you had any “Brush with Fame” experiences... Who/Where.

Unfortunately, no.

As a child what did you want to be when you grew up?

A nurse.

Did you achieve that childhood desire?

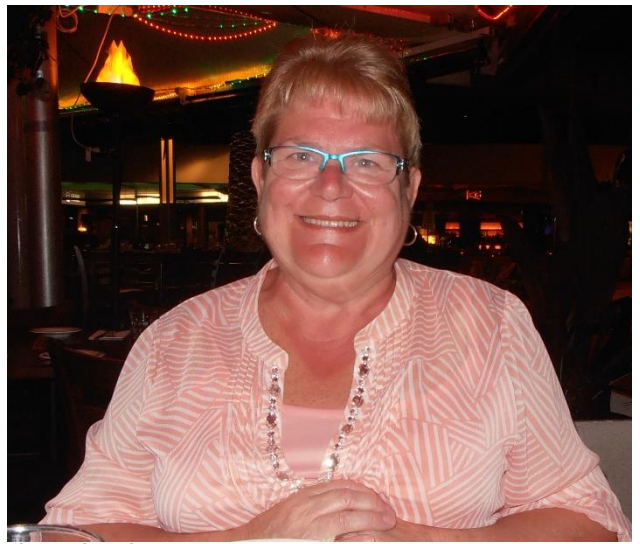

Partly, but I had trouble pronouncing the medical terminology.

What is your favourite childhood memory?

Nothing comes to mind.

If you could be any animal in the world, what animal would you be and why?

A “Meerkat” – they are very well looked after – especially at Antegra. Also, I would become a famous television star with my friend Serge.

THE OLD MAN & THE GUN REVIEW

Sometimes a movie arrives that charms its way into your heart — and The Old Man & the Gun is just such an unassuming, exuberant gift. Only afterwards do you see that its roots go deeper, that its evocation of the past points to an uncertain future. In this self-proclaimed “mostly true story,” Robert Redford — still defining movie-star magnetism at 82 — takes on the role of Forrest Tucker, a real-life bank robber who prides himself on having escaped from prison 16 times. You might call him a “gentleman bandit,” since he’s unfailingly polite to those he robs. Hell, he never even puts bullets in his gun. That wouldn’t be nice, now, would it? And deep into his AARP years, Tucker still has the itch to add to his record of 80 stickups.

The exceptional writer-director David Lowery (A Ghost Story, Ain’t Them Bodies Saints) had previously worked with Redford on the 2016 remake of Pete’s Dragon. But actor and filmmaker find a rhythm here that bubbles up into pure, irresistible pleasure. With a devilish wink, blue eyes that age cannot wither nor custom stale, and a soulful presence that comes from years of experience at his craft, the former Sundance Kid slips into the role like a comfy pair of boots. He had previously announced that this would be his swan song as an actor. Luckily, he’s since walked that back — we’re not ready to give up watching Redford show how it’s done. Not yet. Not ever.

Basing his screenplay on David Grann’s New Yorker article about Tucker’s career in lawbreaking, Lowery never pushes for effect, shooting Old Man like one of Redford’s 1970’s films — think The Sting or Three Days of the Condor — that expertly balance action and character. We meet this career criminal in 1981, after his jailbreak from San Quentin, and Redford makes it clear that this outlaw loves his trade too much to ever consider retirement. He’s a breed apart from his cohorts, the other members of the so-called Over-the-Hill gang played by Danny Glover and Tom Waits; crossing the country from Texas to Missouri has taken its toll on these aged boys. They’re feeling their aches and pains. Not Tucker. He only feels the thrill of the chase. Even John Hunt (a winningly low-key Casey Affleck), the cop on Tucker’s trail, starts showing a grudging appreciation.

Some have accused The Old Man & the Gun of glamorizing criminals. (Have they every seen Bonnie and Clyde? Or The Godfather? Or The Sopranos and Breaking Bad and... ?) But finding the humanity in flawed personalities is called “characterization,” and Redford and Lowery make it painfully clear how much Tucker’s unarmed bank jobs have robbed him of permanence, family and personal freedom. As he leads the cops on one last, merry chase, his defiance isn’t aimless — it’s the whole point. What the star does, and it’s no small thing, is to show why one man nurtures his renegade spirit above all else. And whether it’s really his final bow or not, Redford gives a virtuoso performance that feels like a valedictory. You want to salute him.

10 CHRISTMAS TRADITIONS FROM AROUND THE WORLD

It's the most wonderful time of the year. For a couple of weeks every year the world takes on a magic glow, people seem merrier and even winter somehow feels cosy.

Whether you're celebrating a religious festival, like Hanukkah or Christmas, or a more secular occasion, you're sure to have your own selection of rituals or customs that make the holiday season so special. Our favourite Christmas traditions around the world are loud, proud, and guarantee oodles of festive fun.

KFC CHRISTMAS DINNER, JAPAN

Christmas has never been a big deal in Japan. Aside from a few small, secular traditions such as gift-giving and light displays, Christmas remains largely a novelty in the country. However, a new, quirky "tradition" has emerged in recent years – a Christmas Day feast of the Colonel's very own Kentucky Fried Chicken.

GIANT LANTERN FESTIVAL, PHILIPPINES

The Giant Lantern Festival (Ligligan Parul Sampernandu) is held each year on the Saturday before Christmas Eve in the city of San Fernando – the "Christmas Capital of the Philippines." The festival attracts spectators from all over the country and across the globe.

GÄVLE GOAT, SWEDEN

Since 1966, a 13-metre-tall Yule Goat has been built in the centre of Gävle's Castle Square for the Advent, but this Swedish Christmas tradition has unwittingly led to another "tradition" of sorts – people trying to burn it down. Since 1966 the Goat has been successfully burned down 29 times – the most recent destruction was in 2016.

GÄVLE GOAT, SWEDEN

A beast-like demon creature that roams city streets frightening kids and punishing the bad ones – nope, this isn't Halloween, but St. Nicholas' evil accomplice, Krampus. In Austrian tradition, St. Nicholas rewards nice little boys and girls, while Krampus is said to capture the naughtiest children and whisk them away in his sack. In the first week of December, young men dress up as the Krampus (especially on the eve of St. Nicholas Day) frightening children with clattering chains and bells.

NORWAY BROOMS

Perhaps one of the most unorthodox Christmas Eve traditions can be found in Norway, where people hide their brooms. It's a tradition that dates back centuries to when people believed that witches and evil spirits came out on Christmas Eve looking for brooms to ride on.

SAINT NICHOLAS' DAY, GERMANY

Not to be confused with Weihnachtsmann (Father Christmas), Nikolaus travels by donkey in the middle of the night on December 6 (Nikolaus Tag) and leaves little treats like coins, chocolate, oranges and toys in the shoes of good children all over Germany.

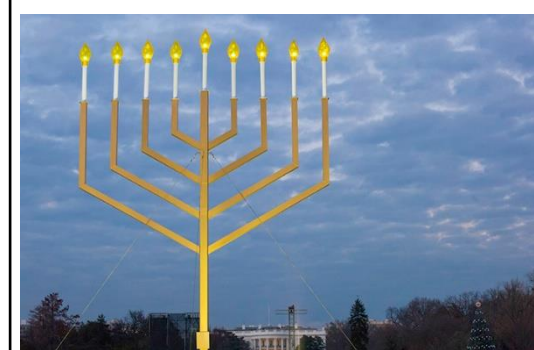

CAVALCADE OF LIGHTS, TORONTO

In wintry, wonderful Toronto the annual Cavalcade of Lights marks the official start to the holiday season. The first Cavalcade took place in 1967 to show off Toronto's newly constructed City Hall and Nathan Phillips Square.

THE YULE LADS, ICELAND

In the 13 days leading up to Christmas, 13 tricky troll-like characters come out to play in Iceland. The Yule Lads (jólasveinarnir or jólasveinar in Icelandic) visit the children across the country over the 13 nights leading up to Christmas. For each night of Yuletide, children place their best shoes by the window and a different Yule Lad visits leaving gifts for nice girls and boys and rotting potatoes for the naughty ones.

LIGHTING OF NATIONAL HANUKKAH MENORAH, WASHINGTON, D.C.

The Jewish holiday of Hanukkah is celebrated with much fanfare across the United States with one of the most elaborate events taking place on a national stage. Since 1979, a giant nine-metre Menorah has been raised on the White House grounds for the eight days and nights of Hanukkah.

VENEZUELA

Every Christmas Eve, the city's residents head to church in the early morning, but do so on roller skates. This unique tradition is so popular that roads across the city are closed to cars so that people can skate to church in safety, before heading home for the less-than-traditional Christmas dinner of 'tamales' (a wrap made out of cornmeal dough and stuffed with meat, then steamed).
